About the Project	Background: The new round of technological revolution and industrial change are rapidly advancing in the world, and competition for comprehensive national power is vast and intense. This effort comes at a crucial time as the North-South divide continues to widen. The UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development is also facing challenges, but the aspirations of people from all countries for peace, development, and cooperation remain strong. Purpose: The seminar aims to share the international talent cultivation situation and path in China, help developing countries improve their international talent cultivation capacity, and discuss the future of cultivating international talents and conducting international human resources development cooperation.
