(1) To improve the business environment is to unleash productivity and enhance competitiveness. The business environment reflects a region's competitiveness, the effectiveness of deepening reform. A good business environment and favorable policies can attract a large number of capital and information flows and other resources. A good business environment has become the key to obtaining various resources.

(2) China has continued to open its door to the outside world, striving to benchmark itself with the world's leading economies, building a fair and competitive market system with high standards, and continuously exploring and creating more opportunities in the areas of intellectual property rights protection, the construction of free-trade zones and the liberalization of market access. The implementation of a series of laws and regulations, such as the Foreign Investment Law and the Anti-monopoly Compliance Guidelines for Businesses, has provided guarantees that are more in line with the requirements of the times for the promotion and protection of foreign investment, further strengthening the sense of serving market players, and it has accelerated the creation of a market-oriented, rule-of-law-based, and internationalized business environment. As Fujian is the frontier province of China's opening up policy, holding the program in Fujian can not only share its experience related to promoting the rule of law and internationalization of the business environment, but also publicize the achievements of China's reform and opening up over the past 40 years, which allow participants to experience the construction and development of the Economic Zone on the coastal area first-hand.
